

ABSTRACT OF DISCLOSURE

A front projection type screen includes a transparent base; a diffusion member formed on one surface of the transparent base; and a retroreflection prism array formed on another surface of the transparent base. Thus, a wide angle of visibility can be secured in a horizontal direction while an angle of visibility in a vertical direction is limited to a narrow scope. Also, a wide viewing angle can be achieved and high efficiency and brightness of light may be obtained.